SLAIN WOMAN FOUND IN S. F. BAY

Large Class Graduates At Richmond High School

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

The American people as a whole waste more articles in one year than money could buy.

* * * *

For instance, there is tinfoil. How many times, after you have finished a packet of cigarettes, have you thrown the pack away? Or have thrown the tinfoil wrapping from a candy bar into the gutter?

* * * *

Few realize the value of this tinfoil. A women's club, however, is collecting the foil and enough is brought in during the year to pay a girl's tuition through college.

* * * *

Thrift is the great lesson the American public should, but won't learn.

* * * *

Why is it that there are some things that one wants to do, and can't do unless it is an accident.

* * * *

Some of you folks who still drive a car with a key ignition switch, know it is impossible, almost, to turn on the switch and then remove the key.

* * * *

But how many of you have accidentally turned on the juice and removed the key, only to discover the accident when you return and find the battery of your car worn down?

* * * *

A large class of Richmond union high school students received their diplomas last night at graduation exercises.

* * * *

And of this class, how many will be successes in life? All have hopes of being so.

* * * *

We still think that graduating in December isn't half the fun as graduating in June. That month has its traditions for graduates. December seems, well, rather an odd time to graduate.

Identification was made tonight by Mrs. Vigh's husband and daughter. Vigh said he and his wife had several quarrels before her disappearance, according to police.

Good Weather Promised For Grid Classic

FAMOUS RACERS TO MEET AT SAN JOSE

SAN JOSE, Dec. 10.—Babe Stapp versus Mel Keneally.

Two of the most popular dirt track pilots in the game on the Pacific coast today are set and prepared to thrill race fans at the San Jose speedway next Sunday, December 14, when they stage a five event match race for a purse of $1000.

The Stapp-Keneally duel has grown from a grudge of long standing and while Stapp rules the favorite he will have to push his Bobby Special at top speed to keep out of the dust raised by Kenealy's Hooker Special. The Hooker is one of the fastest cars of the coast and Kenealy stands a fine chance of lowering Stapp's colors.

Supporting the match races will be a motorcycle program of three races of five-laps apiece with the outstanding drivers on the coast entered. Les Dreisback of Berkeley, a consistent winner here, will meet Al Chasteen of San Jose in a special event.

The San Jose Exchange Club is sponsoring the program and will receive 33 percent of the gross receipts to be used in Christmas charity work for poor children of Santa Clara county.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Dec. 10.—UP—Delving into records of two decades ago, the state today pictured George "Bugs" Moran, notorious Chicago gang leader now without a gang, as a former horse-thief, a play-mate of ex-convicts and pallbearer for the late notorious Dion O'Branion.

In an effort to prove its charge that Moran is a vagrant, prosecutors brought the jailer and sheriff of Bloomington, Ill., to tell that in 1912, Moran stole a horse and buggy and later a coat.

He was sent to Joliet for the horse theft, Sheriff James Reeder testified.

Moran's defense is that he is an executive of a Chicago cleaning and dyeing establishment and has an income of $25,000 a year.

MACON, Mo., Dec. 10.—UP—Albert Layman, brought back to the scenes of his childhood to answer for a crime he was charged with committing more than 40 years ago, was acquitted in district court here today.

A jury, deliberating only 20 minutes, decided Layman, Blackwell, Okla., is not the same man who struck Thomas J. Billings on the head with an axe handle when they quarreled in a Sue City, Mo., rural store in March 1889. Layman had been charged with murderous assault.

Layman, who now is 68 years old, won acquittal when defense attorneys proved he was left handed and confirmed the fact that Billings' assailant was right handed.

Famous Army Officer Dying

General George Barnhardt, commander of Fort Bliss, who is dangerously ill with blood poisoning caused by an infected toe. General Barnhardt came to El Paso from Schofield barracks, Hawaii, where he had been in command.

Burglar Trapped In 50 Foot Fall

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 10.—UP—From now on, Leonard P. Johnson, 44-year-old alleged burglar, will be wary of warehouse doors that look like the ordinary article but lead to open elevator shafts.

Johnson, who admitted he was old enough to know better, described to police how he fell 20 feet to the bottom of the shaft when he tried to enter the warehouse.

"It was the first time in my life I ever called police for help," Johnson lamented. "We need more and better laws about doors."

RECORD-HERALD WANT ADS PAY YOU BIG RETURNS

ROCKNE, TEAM GREETED AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—UP—Knute Rockne, weary from the strain of guiding the Notre Dame team thru its most successful season, waxed philosophical today as 10,000 Chicago enthusiasts jammed LaSalle street station to pay tribute to the "Fighting Irish."

"Enjoy the plaudits while you may," Rockne told his players. "But don't let them go to your head. Remember you're heroes only while you are winning."

"I appreciate the reception and know the welcome is a sincere tribute of good will, but I don't want the boys to take it too seriously" Rockne told the United Press.

"I can't help comparing this welcome with our return from California in 1928. We lost four games that year and took a drubbing from Southern California. There were no cheers then. Our reception committee at Chicago was composed of three men, but the good will of those three fellows who were for us, win or lose, meant as much as all this today."

Rockne was enthusiastic in his praise of the Notre Dame players in the Southern California game. "They played their best football of the year," he said. "Carideo really deserved all the praise given him for his direction of the team. Playing as it did Saturday the team was the equal of any football aggregation I have ever seen."

The crafty Notre Dame coach disclaimed credit for a psychological triumph through his pre-game statements which made Southern California overconfident. "There was no psychology to that. The victory was almost as much a surprise to me as it was to Southern California. I really thought our hard schedule had taken too much out of the team and that we were due for defeat. It wasn't until our final workout at Tucson when the boys showed unusual drive and spirit, that I began to think we might win."

Rockne was undecided regarding his plans for the immediate future, other than that he intends to continue active coaching. "I won't make my work as physically strenuous as a few years ago when like all young coaches I took the game too seriously," he explained. "I'm beginning to realize that after all its only a game and I won't take any chances of impairing my health but I'll go right on coaching as long as I feel I can do justice to the job. When I stop out there will be plenty others to take my place."

NEW RACE MAY BE FOUND TODAY

SOYOPA, Sonora, Mex., Dec. 10.—UP—The expedition of American and Mexican scientists seeking traces of a race of pre-historic supermen reached Soyopa tonight, with prospects that excavation work will start tomorrow.

Heavy rains falling in the deserted valley surrounding Soyopa, the base of the party's operations, may hamper the excavations but every effort was bent to speed the expedition along the last 20 miles of the route to where several giant skeletons are buried.

Automobiles carried the scientists and their equipment to Soyopa but early tomorrow a primitive burro train will be resorted to for the journey to the excavation site. The expedition, headed by Dean Byron H. Cummings of the University of Arizona archaeology staff, arrived here from Tonichi, 30 miles to the south, after a railway trip from Sonora's capital city of Hermosillo.

Accompanying the expedition tomorrow will be the owner of the land where J. L. Coker, mining engineer and guide of the party, discovered three fossilized skeletons all more than eight feet tall. The land owner gave the scientists permission to conduct their research work and will help them establish their camp on the nearby banks of the Yaqui river.

Professor Manuel San Domingo, historical and geographical research director for the state of Sonora and leader of the Mexican scientists in the party, arranged with native Indians in Soyopa to perform the heavy excavation work and drive the burro train.

The skeletons were believed by Dr. Cummings and Coker to be part of a burial ground hidden for unnumbered centuries. It was hoped that many other large skeletons would be found, as it will require such evidence to establish the past existence of the race of "Cyclops" as a scientific fact.

Miss Ladeane Moore, pianist.

Kenneth Gunter, tenor soloist.

Trio—Blaine Booth, first violin; H. J. Lane, second violin; Miss L. Moore, pianist.

Miss Esther Stahl, in solos, accompanied by Barney Crosstick on the banjo.

One-act play, "The Color Line." The cast is composed of:

Dr. Lawson ..... Herrick J. Lane
Barbara ..... Miss Clara Stahl
Stanley ..... Frank Salaba
Chun ..... Blaine Booth
Miss King ..... Muriel Ohler
Wanda ..... Ladeane Moore

Scene: Dr. Lawson's private office. Playing time about 35 minutes.

To Aid Church Fund

The talent is all donated through Herrick Lane of Berkeley. The proceeds of the entertainment are to go to the church fund for the meeting of current expenses. The wiring and lighting are being taken care of by Oscar Carlson, who is to act as stage manager on the night of the play.

A candy sale is being conducted by the Women's Society in conjunction with the Triple T's club. After the program the ladies will hold a miniature bazaar and will sell coffee and hot dogs. The committee in charge of the sale is headed by Mrs. D. A. Dodge and is being assisted by Mrs. H. Boese, Mrs. W. Holland, Mrs. Christine Yepson, Mrs. Matthew Weir and Mrs. H. Williams.

The community at large is called upon to assist in making this program a great success. It is a fine opportunity for everyone to come and meet the people of this church and assist them in carrying on the great work which they have begun.

There is to be no sale of tickets, but everyone will have a chance to assist at the time the silver free offering is received during the evening.

Zoo Terms In Love Letters

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—UP—The zoological terms of endearment used by Mlle. Huerta Rittel, of Vienna and Paris and Connant Hatch, Michigan manufacturer, were read into the records of Supreme Court today.

Mlle. Huerta, who is suing Hatch for breach of promise, asking judgment of $250,000, explained these pet names on the witness stand today.

"We pass one time a little shop in Paris" she said, clapping her hands. "There was in the window a leetle doggie. Eet was of sugar, you see, and I say that it was heem—because he was so sweet.

"And what about the honey horsie part?" asked her cross examiner.

"Eet was mee—the horsie—" said the woman. "He called me 'horsie' because I eat so much. But the honey—zat make eet nice."

RENEGADES IS NOW SHOWING AT FOX

That Myrna Loy is the most fascinating temptress on the screen was the verdict of millions of screen fans after seeing her role of "Yasmini" in "The Black Watch" but in Warner Baxter's newest vehicle for Fox Movietone, "Renegades" the exotic actress is said to win new laurels for her portrayal of an alluring woman spy.

Born in Helen, Montana, Miss Loy came to Los Angeles when still a young girl and received her education at the exclusive Westlake School for Girls. Endowed with a figure of natural grace, she also took up dancing under the famous Ruth St. Denis. On graduating from the Westlake school she began her professional career as a dancer in the prologues of the Los Angeles showings of "The Ten Commandments" "The Thief of Bagdad" and "Romola."

She attracted the attention of Mrs. Rudolph Valentino, who gave her a featured role in her first production, "What Price Beauty."

This role brought her to the attention of screen producers and she appeared in "The Black Watch" "The Great Divide" and "Cameo Kirby" among other pictures.

In "Renegades" she has probably the most vital and dramatic role of her career, as will be seen when the picture comes to the Fox-California theater today. Victor Fleming directed the film for Fox Movietone, and Noah Beery. George Cooper, Gregory Gaye and C. Henry Gordon in prominent roles.

The recommendation suggested that the commission be composed of farmers, bankers, economists, and "representatives of other groups."

Four Bandits Rob Big Bank

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 10.—UP—Police were without clews tonight as to identification of four bandits who robbed the Interstate National bank of approximately $45,000 here today, after holding 24 employes captive for almost an hour.

Three of the bandits stationed themselves in the bank, located on the second floor of the Kansas City Livestock exchange before the bank opened this morning. As the employes, ten of them young women and girls, entered the bank for their day's work, they were herded into a private office and held captive.

The bandits forced F. B. Moore, assistant cashier, to open the vault. The three men stuffed their pockets with currency and walked from he building. They drove away in a small automobile.

The Missouri Bankers' association late today offered a $1,000 reward each for the capture of the four bandits.

Murder Suspect Escapes Police

SAN JOSE, Dec. 10.—UP—A man believed to be H. S. Anderson, wanted in Spokane for questioning about the murder of a railway mail clerk a year ago last October, and in several bay region cities on charges of passing ficticious checks, escaped from the police officer who had arrested him here tonight.

Officer James Healy had taken the suspect to a call box on a down town corner so that he could notify headquarters when the man in custody gave him a hard kick on the shin and disappeared up an alley.

Ricard Rites Will Be Held This Morning

SANTA CLARA, Dec. 10.—UP—A simple, low mass, as is the custom in burial of all Jesuits, will be held here Thursday morning for Father Jerome S. Ricard, "padre of the rains" and one of the world's most prominent scientists.

Archbishop Edward J. Hanna will preside at the services, which will be held in the Mission chapel on the University of Santa Clara campus. The pall bearers will be six black robed Jesuits, and students of the university will stand guard at the casket.

Father Ricard will be buried in the Jesuit plot here, near the observatory whtre in half a century he made many discoveries.

A message of condolence was sent to the Rev. Cornelius J. McCoy, S. J., president of the University of Santa Clara, by governor-elect James Rolph, Jr., today.

"I sympathise with you in the great loss our state has suffered in the death of dear Father Ricard," it said. "His life, given in the cause of the Holy Mother church, his contributions to education and astronomy and his research work for the great special scientific subjects and the enlightenment of mankind endeared him to all. The University of Santa Clara has lost its brilliant star, but I know others will follow in his footsteps to take his place."

American War Authoress To Marry Painter

SANTA BARBARA, Dec. 10.—UP—Mrs. Kathleen Burke McLean, author and a heroine of the World War, will be married to Girard Van Barkaloo Hale prominent mural painter, here Tuesday.

The ceremony will occur Tuesday and will be private. Immediately afterward the couple will leave for New York, to sail on January 10 for Morocco and a four months study of French government excavations. They will return to Santa Barbara to prepare for an archaeological trip to Peru in May.

As Kathleen Burke, Mrs. McLean met Hale in January, 1918, at Soissons, France. She was serving as a nurse and he as a French army ambulance driver. They did not meet again until last year in Buenos Aires, where both were excavating mummies. In the war, Mrs. McLean was decorated by England, France, Serbia and Russia. The first of her two marriages was to Frederick Forrest Peabody, chairman of the board of Cluett, Peabody and Co. Hale's most prominent work is in the state capitol at Salt Lake City, Utah.

ATTACKS ON PRESIDENT CONTINUE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—UP—Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic leader, formally rejected President Hoover's relief program as inadequate today and took the leadership in advocating "liberal legislation" to meet what he said was a national crisis.

He pleaded for cooperation of both parties in his program, rebuked Hoover for ill-temper in connection with his warning of yesterday against raids on the treasury, and said he did not propose to follow his bad example.

Slowly and with restraint, the Democratic leader emphasized the dire conditions prevailing among the unemployed and the farmers, particularly in the drought regions, defended the McNary $60,000,000 farm loan bill which the senate passed unanimously yesterday over White House opposition, and expressed his willingness even to increase taxes if necessary to meet a liberal expenditure for relief.

"We may not be able to cooperate," Robinson said, "but we ought to do it if we can."

There was no doubt that Robinson meant that cooperation meant support of his ideas, not those of the president as expressed so far.

The need for cooperation as proposed first by Robinson and six other party leaders after the election has been emphasized, he said, by the president's statement and the senatorial reaction of criticism.

Senator McKellar, Dem., Tenn., said Hoover should apologize for his damnable and untrue statement. The two days have seen the most denunciatory criticism of a president by a senate probably since the days of Woodrow Wilson after the war.

Famous Old Rail Line To Be Auctioned

WILMINGTON, Ill., Dec. 10.—UP—An auctioneer will knock down the historic $125,000,000 Chicago and Alton railroad at the depot here tomorrow to the highest bidder.

He will mount a platform and proceed to open the bidding as though he were selling a second-hand automobile or a wrist watch instead of a railroad with 1,1000 miles of track, in one of the biggest auction sales ever held in the midwest.

Because of indebtedness against the line, some $80,000,000 or $90,000,000 probably will be the sale price. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad already has purchased controlling interest of the road and is expected to attempt to purchase it in its entirety at the auction, in order to extend the B. and O. system from Chicago to St. Louis and Kansas City.

The Chicago and Alton, which still runs some of the finest passenger trains in America between Chicago and St. Louis, dates back to the days of Abraham Lincoln, who was its attorney in the 1850's.

At the time the road was known as the Alton and Sangamon. Lincoln defended it in several court cases. After he was assassinated the road carried his funeral train to his burial place at Springfield, Ill.

Two Wounded In Bandit Fight

PALESTINE, Texas, Dec. 10.—UP—Six bandits who robbed the bank of Frankston near here of $13,000 and shot down two officers in a gun battle on the Palestine-Athens road late today, were believed trapped near Athens.

Two of the bandits were thought wounded. One bandit fell after an exchange of shots with officers and his companions assisted him onto a truck in which the sextet fled.

A posse converged on a wooded section near Athens where the bandits were believed to have taken refuge.

The robbers escaped in a small car but were forced to abandon it when the car was stuck in the mud. They stole a truck and headed northeast.

Officers overtook them and a battle ensued. Charles Emerson, deputy sheriff was shot through the shoulder and dangerously wounded. Charles Slaughter, Franskton officer, was shot twice. His wounds were not serious.

Bandits Wreck, Rob Orient Train

TOYKO, Dec. 10.—UP—Only one person was injured when bandits wrecked and robbed a train 36 miles west of Saupingkai, Rengo, news agency reports said.

It was at first believed that many were injured. However eight policemen were hurt in the fight with some 70 bandits following the wreck. Railway service was suspended several hours due to the raid, in which passengers were stripped of their valuables.

WORLD COURT PLAN GIVEN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—UP—The world court issue was tossed by President Hoover today into the tangle of emergency business and jangled nerves which has engulfed the short session of congress.

He sent to the senate today the revised project for American adherence to the court.

"I trust," he said in a message, "the protocols may have consideration as soon as possible after the emergency relief and appropriations legislation has been disposed of."

No Action

Though a two-thirds majority is likely on a vote, chances of final action at this session are regarded as remote.

Hoover sent the documents and his message to the senate early in the afternoon. But that body was engaged in a severe denunciation of him for the charge that members of congress were playing politics with human misery.

While a torrent of criticism poured fourth, the documents lay on the desk of Vice President Curtis for about an hour until Chairman William Borah of the foreign relations committee requested that they be presented.

Against Advice

In thrusting the court issue into the senate's lap, President Hoover acted contrary to the advice of his own Republican senate leader. J. E. Watson of Indiana, and other prominent Republicans, including some strong friends of the court.

But Hoover was under heavy pressure from peace organizations favoring the court. They demanded that he make at least a gesture concerning this project which has been dormant for months. Presidents Harding and Coolidge sought to obtain the senate's adherence but objections were encountered.

Early in his administration, President Hoover delegated Elihu Root to go abroad and work out a new formula which is acceptable to other nations. These provisions, the president said in his message today, "free us from any entanglements in the diplomacy of other nations. We cannot be summoned before the court. We can from time to time seek its services by agreement with other nations. These protocols permit our withdrawal from the court at any time without reproach or ill-will."

Move Scored

Opponents of the court alleged this plan merely provides that we can run away should our membership in the court become embarrassing. They regard it as an unworthy position for the United States to take.

Senator Hiram Johnson, Repn., Calif., said: "Neither the senate nor the foreign relations committee ought to pay the slightest heed to this instrument in this session. We have serious work before us for our own people, and but little time to do it. Our attention to the needs of our own should not be diverted to Europe's needs or desires".

EINSTEIN TO BE FACED BY REPORTERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—UP—Dr. Albert Einstein, whose mind travels, like light, to distances unfathomable by most other men, has consented to undergo 15 minutes of excruciating torture tomorrow —general interview with the press, upon his arrival here on the Belgenland.

The little German physicist, whose timidity is not a pose but a very real—almost frantic—dread of the hullabaloo of public acclaim, had intended to slip furtively into port, and remain in seclusion in his stateroom for four days, without so much as popping an eye at the sky scrapers.

His friends on shipboard, however, recognizing the hubbub that would result, persuaded him to brave the storm and get the ordeal over. Therefore he will be seen for a quarter of an hour by the reporters, and for another quarter hour will submit to the ministrations of the cameramen.

Dr. Einstein, when he lifts his eyes from the mathematical and astronomical work on which he is engrossed, is perpetually amazed to find that the world takes any interest in him. He knows the world doesn't understand what his theories are about, and since it can't comprehend his formulae (why, he wonders, should it pay any attention to the man .

Furthermore, he is not here for exhibition purposes. He is here for serious study. A period of research in California which may result in the formulation of some new theories to stagger the world of science and shake some of its pet axioms of time and distance into the discard.

Dr. Einstein was persuaded to make one broadcast at last, it was announced late today. He will speak in the afternoon over the N. B. C. chain, in behalf of Avukah, the American Student Zionist Federation.

Meanwhile, the privileged New York newspapermen who are to go down the gangway to meet him were racking their brains for appropriate questions to ask him.

It hardly seems dignified to ask the author of the "Relativity Theory" whether he approves of flappers wearing rouge, or to say to the man whose mind has seen millions of light years beyond the universe, "say, what'd ya think of the N'York sky line?"

He broke 15 windows in the Santa Rosa post office building and then waited calmly until police came to arrest him. He is held for investigation and a charge of "destruction of federal property" may be lodged against him.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Prime Minister J. Ramsey MacDonald is losing his vigorous health because of the gruelling political strife he has born during the past few years.

Rumors that he would retire have been given little credance, but it is believed he would welcome a rest for a time. His eldest daughter Ishbel has shown a similar health condition.

STOCKS DROP, MAKE SLIGHT RECOVERY

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—UP—Stocks suffered a violent reaction in the afternoon trading today, but a recovery in the last few minutes prevented the industrial average from touching a new low for the last two years.

Dozens of issues in the industrial group made new lows. The rails on the average made the lowest points since 1925. Utilities were sharply depressed.

United States steel was driven down to within 1-2 point of its low for the year at 138 1-2. It rallied from that level to 141 off 1 net where it closed the day.

American Can dropped from 113 5-8 to 109 5-8 and closed at 111 5-8 off 7-8 for the day; Eastman Kodak from 157 to 151 5-8 to close at 154 off 3 3-8; General Electric from 47 1-4 to 44 5-8 to 46 off 7-8; General Motors from 34 1-2 to 33 to 33 5-8 off 3-8; Peoples Gas from 208 to 202 off 4; Standard Gas from 64 3-8 to 60 to 60 1-2 off 4 and Westinghouse Electric from 97 1-4 to 92 1-2 to 94 off 2.

The reaction came out of a clear sky just at a time when good news was at its height. The U. S. Steel corporation announced an increase in unfilled tonnage of 157,873 tons for November as compared with October. Steel Common stocks rose for a moment and then headed downward. It fell 2 points and unsettled the entire market.

Trading increased. Thousands of shares were thrown upon the market for what they would bring. Just before the close a block of 60,000 General Electric sold at 45 1-8 20,000 Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific at 5 1-2 off 3-4 and a new low for more than three years; 30,000 Chrysler at 15 7-8 off 1 from the previous close.

After these tremendous blocks had been turned over the list steadied and then ran up sharply from the lows. The late rally was induced by short coverings but the time was too short for the recovery to go very far.

Copper exporters reduced the price of the metal to 11.30 cents a pound, foreshadowing a cut to 11 cents in the domestic price which recently was boosted to 12 cents by producers.

What Might Happen to Business—and to Men—if the Ten Million Women Employed in the United States Were Fired

THAT the problem of unemployment can be solved by replacing men workers with women is an idea which pops up every day or so, either in "letters to the editor" or in news reports of actual attempts at such substitution. Sometimes it is proposed that employers discharge married women workers "whose husbands are able to support them," or "whose husbands are earning $3,000 a year or more." Sometimes all employed married women or—most sweepingly simple suggestion—all employed women are called usurpers of jobs, "which should be given to men."

According to the 1930 census figures, ten million American women now work at some paid occupation. Forget, for a moment, the effect on the lives of this feminine army if it, or any considerable portion of it, were suddenly discharged. Think of the effect on business—and on men.

Doris Fleischman, one of New York's successful business women, has not only thought about it, but recently projected her vivid mental picture for the members of the American Woman's Association. Because we believe that other women—and men—will be interested in this picture, we reproduce it here.

"WOMEN," points out Miss Fleischman, "are not responsible for the present unemployment situation. In fact, they have staved off unemployment for a good many years. Women, by working, have created jobs for men. Without women workers many more men would be jobless today.

"In the ten years from 1910 to 1920 women stenographers, typists, clerks, bookkeepers and the like have increased about a million. These women are the check current that runs through the high tension wires of modern business. If the labors of women clerks were to be suddenly cut out, all clerical routine would have to be cut down because of being too detailed for men to consider.

"The cost of living is so high that few men are able to keep up with luxuries; therefore women have had to pitch in and help buy their own luxuries, and if these luxuries were not made there would be fewer jobs for men.

"If women did not work in offices they would be at home helping mother wash dishes, but there would be no money to buy all the electric equipment used to run the modern house. Electric ice machines make work for men, as it takes more men to manufacture and sell a single ice machine than for one individual to deliver ice.

"Jewelry manufacture provides jobs for over 43,000; furs supply 22,000 with work. In 1910 only one of 246 females had silk stockings; in 1923 every female had four and one-half pairs, including babies. If men were earning only as much as they do now it would be impossible to support women in their present manner of living.

"THE women who went from jobs to homes would wear housework dresses. More of such dresses would be worn, but it would require fewer workers to make them. Ready-made dress machine makers would be thrown out of employment. The only industry to profit would be the home sewing machine industry, and that at the expense of the trade sewing machines.

"The silk industry, dry cleaning, retail shops would suffer, and, if women were at home all day, food manufacturers and dispensers would have to cut down for lack of customers; restaurants, delicatessens and drug store lunch counters would close. This would be responsible for throwing large numbers of men out of work.

"The women would become so attached to their homes by staying in them that they would not want to move to newer homes. Old buildings would stand longer, curtailing the work of men in building trades, moving van industries, storage warehouses and even interior decoration, because women would buy their furniture for permanence at the expense of the last-mentioned industry. A large portion of the men engaged in all of the above pursuits would be without their jobs, if women gave up their jobs.

"MACHINES must be manufactured to make all the objects named, and these industries are run largely by men, as well as the industries supplying the basic materials that go into the manufacture of many products, and the transportation of both product and basic material. Such a change as easing women out of paid jobs would throw hordes of men out of employment.

"Women are doing their share of the nation's work. Every man and woman should have the opportunity to work, if he or she desires or needs it, and there is absolutely no ground for allowing the sentimental standards of a century ago to be advanced as a solution of the serious problems of 1930."

FUTILITY

I've tried so hard to live it down
But nothing will avail me;
I fear the thing will dog my steps,
All through my life will trail me.

I've even sought to drown in drink
My awful reputation;
There's nothing in the world, it seems,
Can change the situation.

Deep in my grave, when winter snows
Around my head and feet whirl,
I'll hear them read my epitaph—
"Jane—she was a Sweet Girl"!

J. O'J.

There's Always Something—And Somebody—To Regret

The evolution of courtship from the old fashioned horse and buggy to the modern automobile is to be regretted, says the Rev. J. Lawry Fendrich of Brooklyn, but some of us can remember when preachers said that buggy-riding courtship was to be regretted, too.

"Out of the Eater Came Forth Meat, and Out of the Strong Came Forth Sweetness."

Out of Trouble I have seized the opportunity to make my Destiny and conquer Fate—
Fate who but yesterday stood ready to drown my life in tears,
Today must stand aside—
I've outgrown fears.

Pointers About Gloves

IN A RECENT edition of Successful Farming there were some interesting pointers made by a writer on the care of gloves. The first bit of advice is that for each new pair of gloves to be purchased the hand be measured. Gloves that are too large look ungraceful and are uncomfortable. Small gloves do not wear well and surely do not add to the beauty of the hand. Always put gloves on carefully, working them on the four fingers first and the thumb last. When removing the gloves from the fingers peel them off instead of tugging away.

For longer wear gloves should be cleaned or washed often, according to the material. Gloves wet with rain, snow or perspiration should be left in the air to dry after they have been taken off the hands to prevent the leather from mildewing or spotting. It is wrong to place damp leather on a hot register for quick drying, as it will become stiff and weakened.

A DISH A DAY

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

Several of the readers of this department have only recently learned to bake cakes, and they have become so enthusiastic over the discovery that they can turn out delicious, light baked confections that they clamor for more and more recipes. After making all the standard layer cakes, and cup cakes, angel cakes with many eggs, and economy cakes with few, cooks who look on their kitchen activities as an adventure rather than drudgery are sure to want to explore new and different fields.

Our ingenue KAREN HOLLIS cooks want to know how to make cakes of different texture, something a little more thick and golden and crumbly than the standard layer cake, and yet not quite so rich as a pound cake. Suggestions for unusual fillings are also welcome.

In response to these requests I am going to tell you about a gold cake that is a great favorite of mine, but if you have any cherished recipes that you think fill the bill better, I wish that you would write and tell me about them.

GOLDEN CAKE

1½ cups sugar
8 egg yolks, beaten until thick
¾ cup milk
2½ cups special cake flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon lemon extract

Cream the butter, add sugar gradually, and beat until light. Add egg yolks and beat well. Sift the flour once, measure and sift three times with salt and baking powder. Add alternately with the milk to the butter, sugar and egg mixture. Beat after each addition until smooth, so that the cake will be fine-grained. Add lemon extract, beat well, and bake in three 9-inch layer cake pans for twenty-five minutes in a moderate oven. Put layers together with orange marmalade and cover top and sides with quick frosting.

QUICK FROSTING

2 egg whites, unbeaten
1½ cups sugar
5 tablespoons cold water
2 teaspoons light corn syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla

Put egg whites, sugar, corn syrup and water in the upper part of a double boiler. Beat with rotary egg beater until thoroughly mixed, then place over rapidly boiling water and continue beating briskly. Cook for seven minutes, or until frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from fire, add vanilla, and beat until thick enough to spread.

Pajamas For Penthouse and Casino

CHARTREUSE PAJAMAS WITH PRINTED CHIFFON BLOUSE, PLEATED ONES WITH A VELVET COAT AND A ONE-PIECE VIONNET TYPE WITH LAME COAT.

By Ann Roberts

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

ONE of the big public questions before the world just now is this: Are you going to accept pajamas or are you not?

I have seen strong women ready to die for their own adopted cause adopt a wholly antagonistic attitude toward pajamas for this or for that reason. And I have seen them break down, too, before the force of beauty which pajamas do, after all, carry right along with them.

One woman wearing for the first time a really lovely suit of pajamas found herself literally showered with compliments about the beauty of her figure. Whereupon she confided to me, "You know I've always had a good figure and I know it too, but no one else seems to have noticed it until now."

There's the heart of the matter for you. There's the secret magic that pajamas hold for their own. And they do their work so charmingly too. You simply won't be able to resist them for long no matter how hard and fast your prejudices may be.

Just let the Palm Beach season even hint of an approach and you begin to see visions of yourself at the Casino decked in the new fashion—pajamas. They are being done that way.

Then there is the latest social wrinkle—the penthouse party. Pajamas for that sort of an intime affair are quite the accepted thing.

Fact is that once you begin wearing them and feeling the subtlety of their flattering quality you will find yourself making occasions upon which it will be possible to wear them.

The colors—to begin with—are so fascinating. You can wear such rare and exotic things in this sort of costume—shades and tones that become you vastly and which you wouldn't dare to do in your everyday clothes because other people don't do them and you might look freakish.

* * *

For Penthouse Doings

THERE is that luscious chartreuse set—the trousers and the sleeveless jacket made from the flat colored silk and the little blouse all full and floppy made from one of the most beautiful of all chiffon prints in a combination of chartreuse and henna.

Could anything be lovelier? And in what other sort of a gown could you manage to run so riotous a course with regard to color?

Then there is also the Vionnet type of pajama. This designer understands the art of modern draping as does no other and her design ideas apply awfully well to the pajama sort of thing.

One is pictured here. It is made in one piece—that is with no break at the waistline, and the trousers have full sunburst pleats set in at the sides. The material is that heavy triple chiffon, sheer enough looking but under which no lining need be posed.

The long coat is of that sheer, wraithlike lame so gorgeous in texture, so well adapted for this picturesque sort of attire.

* * *

In Tailored Fashion

FOR the casino your pajamas don't have so negligee a look. They are tailored or they are more for evening wear. Sometimes they are very much tailored, as in the case of those black satin ones seen illustrated on this page.

The trousers are not too wide to look tailored. The coat is double-breasted and belted, made with formal little reveres and collar. Then there is the most feminine sort of an organdie blouse—pure white—so that the contrast of color is effectively handled.

Most pajamas, you will admit, are ugly from the back. At least, we might say, that is their worst view. For casino pajamas that little defect has been brilliantly overcome by a design (illustrated) which looks more like a skirt in back while the trousers are apparent only from the front.

With this effective suit in white flat crepe one of those very new coral necklaces is worn—one that hangs loosely down the back and is tight around the neck in the front. This helps a back enormously when its lines are not just absolutely perfect.

Pleated trousers are ever so full and wide in another important pajama fashion. The ones shown on this page are of bright orange and the short jacket is made of black velvet.

How to Lay Out a Budget

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

RUNNING the home on the budget plan is becoming quite general and it is probably safe to say that in every successful home, as in business, the household budget and account system prevails.

To budget the household income is no arduous task. There is no set rule for doing this, so every woman may classify the items as she best understands them and as is easiest for her. However, experts have worked out a system of household accounting that is quite simple.

All money spent may be placed under classified headings and the income must be budgeted under these. For general family requirements the income must be divided to cover (1) food, (2) shelter, (3) clothing, (4) operating, (5) furnishing and equipment, (6) health, (7) advancement and recreation, (8) personal expenses, (9) savings. If you have an automobile include this as a tenth column.

Food will include all food purchased and meals out.

The shelter column must cover rent, taxes, interest on mortgage, fire insurance on house, repairs and improvements on the property.

Under clothing you must consider garments purchased, materials, trimmings, findings, services of dressmaker, pressing, dry cleaning, repairing. Everything wearable is classified as clothing.

Classification 4, operating, includes fuel, light and power, water, telephone, fire insurance on furniture and equipment, ice, laundry, tending the furnace, gardener's labor (cutting lawn, etc.), maid and other domestic service, rent on safe deposit box, interest on borrowed money, fare on train, car, bus, etc. (not including vacation and pleasure trips), express, freight, cartage, postage, telegrams, stationery, household supplies, such as soap, starch and all laundry and cleaning necessities, strings, paper and tacks.

Under furnishings and equipment is understood all furniture, floor coverings, hangings, table accessories bedding, washing machine, dishes, cooking utensils, cleaning implements—in fact every article that is used in the home, including ornaments, plants and cut flowers, musical instruments and all repairs on household articles. Storage on household goods also goes under this head.

Why Blame the "Permanent"?

A. T. WRITES to ask, "Why is it that ever since I have had my hair permanently waved, it looks dusty and dry and falls out? . . . Of course I don't fuss with my hair the way I used to before I had the wave. But then I didn't think it necessary. Please tell me what to do."

Another little girl who expects miracles. Another little girl who seems to think that a permanent wave is a sort of cure-all for straightness and lankiness and lifelessness and every ill that hair is heir to.

If anything, hair requires more care and more intelligent care after it is permanently waved—as any good and honest hair expert will tell you. Not at all that the permanent wave process is harmful, but that in order to accomplish its purpose it must of necessity steal away some of the hair's natural oil.

True, the best of the "permanents" are designed to preserve or even give back as much of the oil as is necessary for hair health and beauty. Still, one attempt during the waving process is not enough. If the hair is to continue in a state of joyous health and if the wave is to "stay put" beautifully, then regular treatments are quite essential.

Hair experts agree that too frequent shampooing is not only unnecessary where the hair is permanently waved, but a detriment to its continued health and attractiveness. However, frequent cleansing is urged. And as old friends of this column must know, cleansing of the hair and scalp does not always mean the use of soap and water.

Brushing the hair is a most excellent means of cleansing it. Moreover, it endows the hair with life, gives it lustre and the appearance of greater thickness instantly. However, in order to produce all these desirable effects, the brushing must be done properly. And believe it or not, there are tons of people who don't know the first thing about wielding a hair brush!

First of all the head must be bent forward and the hair thrown over the face and the brush swept upward from the back over the top of the head and down to the tips of the hair. After that, the hair must be held aloft in separate strands and brushed up and away from the scalp. And this must continue through every strand of hair—and the brush wiped each time—until the whole crop is silky and soft with sheer cleanliness.

You see, A. T., you must "fuss" with your hair—permanent wave or no permanent wave—if you want your hair to have life and luxuriance and loveliness!

JUST HOW IT'S DONE

THE confession of a football expert, or how I pick my All-America team:

Picking an All-America team is easy when you know the ropes. There are eleven men on a football team, which makes it 8 3-4 per cent easier than selecting a jury. Moreover, an All-America team does not have to bring in a verdict. As soon as you have made it up, the team promptly disbands.

I always start at left end in picking my teams because I am left-handed. I try to think of all the left ends I have heard about this season, even if only from Graham McNamee. In case I leave a good one out, I can always claim he slumped in the Ursinus game and is not entitled to consideration.

When I have a list of about a dozen left ends, I begin discarding, following Milton C. Work's directions. Finally I have three men left for the position, Pollop of Otterbein, Rzckwskjtmnl of Purdue and O'Flanagan of Harvard. Rzckwskjtmnl would be my first choice, but I am not certain how to spell him. That leaves my final selection between Pollop and O'Flanagan. If we have a profile photo of Pollop in our reference department, he gets the job. Otherwise I give it to O'Flanagan on account of his height.

* * *

I next pass on to left tackle. There are usually fifteen outstanding left tackles, but I eliminate thirteen of these by the eeny-meeny-miny-mo system. This brings the choice down between Culpreth of Illinois and Dolby of Kalamazoo Normal. Inasmuch as I have not seen either of these boys play, I can judge them impartially. So I give the position to Culpreth because he is an orphan.

Selecting left guard is just as difficult, and so are the other four line positions. It often takes me all of twenty minutes to make an accurate choice. But since 1922 I have always chosen a roving center on account of a jam I got into that year. It seems in 1922 I picked a dead center for my team. There was quite a squawk about my picking a dead man, but I finally wormed out of the difficulty by proving that, after all, it was a mythical team. I squared the whole matter by placing two myths on either side of the dead center, in the guard positions, and frankly stating I was a ghost writer myself.

But the whole thing taught me a lesson and you don't catch me picking anyone but a roving center now. I also try to avoid picking cripples for my team, although I once named a half back who had a goitre. I explained this away by saying that Garfinkle (the half back with the goitre) could wrap his arms around his chest and make the opposition think the goitre was the football he was carrying, thereby adding to the deception of his attack. But rival experts declared he would have to paint the goitre with iodine to make it look like the football. In rebuttal I claimed that that is what I had in mind all the time.

* * *

This illustrates the difficulties of picking an all-America team. The back field is just as hard, even to an expert. This year, on account of the Savoldi incident at Notre Dame, I must be careful that none of my back field selections have even applied for a divorce. For that reason I have discarded Delancey of Reno University.

Ordinarily, I would name the Four Horsemen as my 1930 back field, but to save expenses for stirrups and saddles, I have decided to pass them up. I am also tempted to name Albee Booth of Yale, but you must remember it was a Booth who shot Lincoln and there is no need of bringing up the old Civil War animosities again.

So in selecting my back field I go back to my system of picking the line. When I am working on a New York paper, I always pick at least one man from the Pacific Coast for my all-America team. Or if I am the expert on a San Francisco paper, I pick thirteen Californians for my all-America eleven and mention a couple of Easterners as substitutes.

That is the way I make my all-America selections and the best part of it is that the team is never called on to play. If it ever happened my all-America team was actually booked for a game, I would ask the sporting editor to shift me to covering lawn tennis.

THIS AND THAT

The United States Supreme Court has ordered the leading film companies to cease being a trust. It means that in a couple of months you can see seven reels of Amos without getting Andy.

"Landslide for Pilsudski."—Headline.

It sounds like another victory for beer.

Oxford University gave J. P. Morgan an honorary degree this week. But what Wall Street wants is a commencement—of anything.

There is one consolation for Joe Savoldi, who got fired from the Notre Dame team. He won't have to worry for the next three weeks whether he gets picked for the All-America team.

"Psychologists find you get left-handed if you lack vitamin B."—News item.

If you lack a right arm it makes you that way, too.

S. F. Murder Suspect Says He Was Framed

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 10.—UP—Although each new discovery of their investigation into the slaying of Mrs. Rosetta Baker, 70, actress and clubwoman, seemed to bolster the charge of murder they placed against Leu Fook, aged Chinese servant, detectives still lacked complete confidence in their solution of the case here tonight.

Immediately after the funeral services for Mrs. Baker, who was found in her Nob Hill apartment Monday morning with a bed sheet tied tightly about her throat, were concluded, Leu's attorney, William L. Gloria, issued a statement that evidence gathered by police was "much too perfect."

Gloria claimed that Leu was innocent and charged that the perpetrator of the crime had "planted" evidence to implicate his client.

Evidence Found

Detectives had announced circumstantial evidence against Leu as follows:

A tiny piece of skin found near Mrs. Baker's body fits perfectly over a scratch on Leu's hand and the apartment indicated Mrs. Baker had fought hard against her assailant. Close to the fragment of skin were the heel of a man's shoe and the button from a shirt. Blood stained clothing with one button missing was found in a pail of water in quarters occupied by the Chinese under Mrs. Baker's apartment and the heel fits a shoe found there. In those quarters, also, was found jewelry that had belonged to Mrs. Baker.

Leu replied that he received the cut on his hand while washing windows Saturday, that the heel of his shoe had been loose for some time and that he had more than four hours from the time of the killing before he reported finding his mistress dead in which to dispose of the clothing and jewelry carefully had he been responsible.

Pleads Not Guilty

In a signed statement for police, written in Chinese, Leu said:

"I am not guilty of killing my mistress. Mrs. Baker had lots of diamonds and jewelry. I could have taken them all and run away. She trusted me. I never did that. Mrs. Baker liked me very much. But I quit five times and she called me back. She liked me. I want everyone to help me find the killer of my mistress."

Japan Facing Depression

RIVERSIDE, Dec. 10.—UP—Although facing a bumper crop of rice and silk cocoon, Japan is suffering from severe depression, Tokuya Sakurauchi, executive of the Yokohama Specie Bank, said today in addressing the seventh annual session of the institute of international relations.

"As a result of raising the value of her currency and world depression, the country was forced into a loss of 30 percent of her foreign trade in the first ten months of 1930," he said.

Sakurauchi pointed out that the price of raw silk had fallen fifty percent. He said that Japan hopes for recovery of business conditions in the United States because America absorbs 40 percent of her entire export trade.
